

Alstonefield Village Hall Events NEWS RELEASE

"A gift for melody, brave, poignant, entertaining, original" Guardian ★★★★★

When: Saturday 10 June 2017

8.00pm

What: CHARLIE DORE w/Julian Littman

Introducing her brand new album, Dark Matter

Alstonefield continues its programme of top-quality concerts with a very special evening of eclectic, contemporary music as multi-award winner Charlie Dore, one of the UK's most respected songwriters, teams up with multi-instrumentalist Julian Littman (of Steeleye Span) to share her brand new album, Dark Matter.

Best known for her 1990s hit Pilot of the Airwaves (the last track ever played on Radio Caroline), the Ivor Novello nominated songwriter and multi-instrumentalist has a multi-faceted career that includes, acting in film, TV and radio, comedy-improvisation and composition for film - as well as performing live with her band.

Her songs have been covered by artists including George Harrison ('Fear of Flying'), Tina Turner, Lisa Stansfield, Ricky Ross, Sheena Easton, Celine Dion, Black, UB40, Status Quo, Paul Carrack and Jimmy Nail (with the UK No 1, 'Ain't No Doubt').

The new Dark Matter collection promises a fast-moving show as Dore, with her long-time musical partner Julian Littman, swap guitars, mandolin, harmonium, ukulele, piano and autoharp. They'll also dip into favourites from her past 6 albums, as well as sharing original acoustic versions of hits Charlie has written for others.

The Alstonefield team added: "They may even play a version of Pilot of the Airwaves if we ask nicely...."

"A voice like Kate McGarrigle meets Dory Previn - wonderful" Mike Harding
